

CDC Health-Care-Associated Infection Measures By Hospital

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's health-care-associated infection measures show how frequently patients at specific hospitals contracted infections during their stays. The CDC rates more than 3,000 hospitals as better, worse or as expected given the type of hospital and its mix of patients. <http://www.medicare.gov/hospitalcompare/Data/Healthcare-Associated-Infections.html>

This chart shows how hospitals rated on four types of infections contracted between Oct. 1, 2012, and Sept. 30, 2013. It also shows how the hospitals rated on two types of infections (MRSA and C. diff) contracted between Jan. 1, 2013, and Sept. 30, 2013.

- CLABSI -- Central Line-Associated Blood Stream Infections compared to national benchmarks
- CAUTI -- Catheter-Associated Urinary Tract Infections compared to national benchmarks
- MRSA -- Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus Aureus blood laboratory-identified events (bloodstream infections) compared to national benchmarks
- C. diff -- Clostridium difficile laboratory-identified events (intestinal infections) compared to national benchmarks
- SSI: Hysterectomy -- Surgical Site Infection from abdominal hysterectomy compared to national benchmarks
- SSI: Colon -- Surgical Site Infection from colon surgery compared to national benchmarks
